

The Lower Danube Survey for Paleolithic Sites

Fieldwork at Dealul Guran 2012

August 13 - September 14

We invite applications for excavations at the newly discovered Lower and Upper Paleolithic site of Dealul Guran, southeastern Romania (near Constanța, and 40 km from the Black Sea coast). Besides learning about the scientific background of the project and the regional Paleolithic you will gain experience in modern excavation techniques as well as local and regional geomorphology and stratigraphy. Working in the laboratory will train you in find management tasks, including cleaning, sorting, and labeling, as well as the computerized cataloguing of finds.

Sanitary facilities and meals will be provided. Participants will sleep in tents outside the laboratory and must bring tents and sleeping bags. They must fund their own journey to Bucharest (flight) and then to Medgidia (train or bus, 2-3 hrs.) where they will be picked up by car.

The project language is English. Certificates of participation can be obtained upon request.

For more information visit lodans.wordpress.com/2012-season

Please send applications including basic information regarding your anthropological, geological, and/or archaeological education to iovita@rgzm.de

The LoDanS campaign 2012 is funded by the Max-Planck-Institute for Evolutionary Anthropology, Leipzig, Germany, and is undertaken in cooperation with the MONREPOS Archaeological Research Centre and Museum for Human Behavioural Evolution (RGZM), Neuwied, Germany, and the Institute of Archaeology «Vasile Pârvan» and the Institute of Speleology «Emil Racovitza» of the Romanian Academy of Sciences.

Max Planck Institute for Evolutionary Anthropology

Department of Human Evolution

Römisch-Germanisches
Zentralmuseum
Forschungsinstitut für
Archäologie

R G Z M

