

Palaeolithic Seminar

A joint initiative of the National and Kapodistrian University of Athens and the University of Crete (Departments of History and Archaeology), the Palaeolithic Seminar aims to bring Palaeolithic Archaeology closer to its specialist and wider audience. It aspires to become a forum where the results of recent work in the field and the latest theoretical trends within the discipline are presented and discussed.

Program

December 16th 2015

Professor Naama Goren-Inbar, Hebrew University of Jerusalem

The Acheulian site of Gesher Benot Ya'aqov, Israel: environment, hominin culture, subsistence and adaptation

January 14th 2016

Professor Geoff Bailey, University of York

Submerged landscapes and hominin dispersals: a world perspective

February 18th 2016

Dr Andreas Darlas, Director, Ephorate of Palaeoanthropology and Speleology, Athens
100,000 years of Mani prehistory: the cultures of the Middle and Upper Palaeolithic

March 23rd 2016

Associate Professor Nena Galanidou, University of Crete

Lesbos half a million years ago: the archaeological evidence from Rodafnidia, Lisvori

April 2016 (date to be announced)

Professor Javier Baena Preysler, Autonomous University of Madrid

The Lower and Middle Paleolithic in Madrid (Spain): recent discoveries

May 2016 (date to be announced)

Professor Katerina Harvati, Eberhard-Karls University of Tübingen

New palaeoanthropological research conducted: the PaGE project 2012-2015

“A. Argyriadis” amphitheatre
University of Athens central building, 30 Panepistimiou av.
19.00, admission free

Organisers:

Georgia Kourtessi-Philippakis, National and Kapodistrian University of Athens
Nena Galanidou, University of Crete